Re: Current Events in the Middle East

Dear Valued Customer:

TTI, Inc. understands that recent events in and around the Middle East may raise questions about potential impacts on component availability. Please be assured that we are monitoring the situation closely, and at this time, the risk of shortages remains very low. We remain committed to maintaining stability and ensuring on-time deliveries.

Current reports indicate that factories in Israel and surrounding areas continue to operate at near-normal capacity, with most business activities proceeding as usual. One of our major suppliers has also confirmed that they maintain strong buffer stocks for key raw materials and that material flow, production, and shipping activities are continuing without interruption.

In addition, suppliers have emphasized that they are well positioned with multiple production sites located in other regions. Their distribution networks across the Americas, Asia, and Europe also have inventory available for immediate shipment.

The primary challenge at this time involves cargo ship routing. Suppliers are actively securing alternative logistics solutions—such as air freight—to ensure the supply chain remains stable, efficient, and uninterrupted.

Rest assured, TTI, Inc. will continue to monitor developments daily and take all necessary steps to keep the supply chain stable and fully operational.

Regards,
