Change Overview

- As part of Molex's continuous effort to support customer demand and strengthen regional supply capabilities, production of the terminal series listed below will be transferred from Lincoln, USA to Chengdu, China.
- Through this effort, Molex intends to better align manufacturing locations with regional demand and enhance supply chain responsiveness for customers in Asia and Europe.
- Asia and EMEA customers will primarily be supplied from the Chengdu manufacturing plant, supporting a regional supply model and improved service levels.
- AME customers will continue to be supplied from existing manufacturing locations, with no impact to product availability or performance.
- The Chengdu facility is an established Molex manufacturing site with proven production capability for these terminal products. This transfer leverages existing manufacturing expertise and available capacity to support future demand requirements.
- The notification is due to a manufacturing location transfer and associated Country-of-Origin change, where applicable.
- There is no change to fit, form, function, material, performance, reliability, or product specifications as a result of this change. No customer requalification is required unless otherwise specified by customer requirement.
